3. Identify the organization that is legally and financially responsible for the conduct of the activities supported by the award.

Oregon Health Network is a 501(c) 3 organization and is responsible for the FCC award.

4. Explain how the project is being coordinated throughout the state or region.

OHN has and continues to actively engage stakeholders at the state and national level in order to elevate and maximize the collaborative efforts and knowledge of key players in health care, health care education, telemedicine/telehealth and policy as it relates to the ongoing health and sustainability of the RHCPPs. As we draw to the close of the RHCPP, we have 243 sites actively engaged and expected to join the network as a result of the RHCPP subsidy, we continue to gain awareness and build momentum (interest) at all levels. In addition we are engaging non-RHCPP healthcare providers and educators who need integrated connectivity with OHN members to deliver healthcare.

We will continue to maximize and leverage the influence of “champion” community health care/education anchor institution participants to drive use and full adoption of the network as well as to bring on new participants. Additionally, as our participation base expands and news of how OHN participants intend to make full use of their new connection, and test results measuring the before and after OHN connection are revealed, OHN will have successfully transitioned from being only that of a RHCPP project implementer on to a customer service driven organization that identifies and drives value to its members for mass use and adoption.

Out of our daily work came the realization that OHN had the opportunity to elevate the discussion at a regional, state, and national level by aligning our vision to serve the triple aim with our newly defined set of 12 Health IT Best Practices. These best practices address all the strategic, tactical and policy expertise and resource areas required to support integrated health care delivery and the Triple Aim goals of CMS.. OHN has received a growing level of national and state recognition for these best practices, and continues to leverage this strategic framework to enhance and perfect its business model and value it provides its membership.

5. Identify all health care facilities included in the network.

- a. Provide address (including county), zip code, Rural Urban Commuting Area (RUCA) code (including primary and secondary), six-digit census tract, and phone number for each health care facility participating in the network.

The information requested is provided in Attachment A.

- b. For each participating institution, indicate whether it is:

- i. Public or non-public;
- ii. Not-for-profit or for-profit;
- iii. An eligible health care provider or ineligible health-care provider with an explanation of why the health care facility is eligible under section 254 of the 1996 Act and the Commission's rules or a description of the type of ineligible health care provider entity.

The information requested is provided in Attachment A.

6. Network Narrative: In the first quarterly report following the completion of the competitive bidding process and the selection of vendors, the selected participant must submit an updated technical description of the communications network that it intends to implement, which takes into account the results its network design studies and negotiations with its vendors. This technical description should provide, where applicable:

- a. Brief description of the backbone network of the dedicated health care network, e.g., MPLS network, carrier-provided VPN, a SONET ring;

See "e" answer below

- b. Explanation of how health care provider sites will connect to (or access) the network, including the access technologies/services and transmission speeds;

See "e" answer below

- c. Explanation of how and where the network will connect to a national backbone such as NLR or Internet2;

See "e" answer below

- d. Number of miles of fiber construction, and whether the fiber is buried or aerial;

See "e" answer below

- e. Special systems or services for network management or maintenance (if applicable) and where such systems reside or are based.

Prior to OHN, health facilities had two basic choices for data network connectivity. They could lease dedicated lines between pairs of locations they wished to connect or they could use the public Internet. Leased line solutions for data are similar to the earliest days of telephony before the advent of central office telephone switches, when conversations were possible only between two points on the opposite ends of a line. Once central office switches were introduced into telephony, customers only needed one line to the central office switch and could be connected there to any other customer without being required to arrange for lines to every point they wished to connect. OHN provides a similar solution for data networking in Oregon by requiring a high quality of service from each end user location to a common data switching location that all participants can connect to directly. That single broadband connection then permits reliable broadband connectivity with every other end user location connected to the switch with guaranteed high quality of service.

This high quality broadband data connectivity is quite different from that of the public Internet. Because the Internet is not a single network but is the result of interconnecting a large number of independent networks throughout the world, no Internet Service Provider (ISP) can control the quality of service except on its own portion of the complex network. Consequently, all ISP contracts are “best efforts” contracts with no guarantees of the amount or quality of data transport provided. Since all of the major Internet connection points on the west coast of the United States are in California or Washington, almost all Oregon Internet traffic is routed out of state and goes through up to 20 “routers” (the data networking equivalent of telephone switches) before getting from one Oregon destination to another.

The lack of quality of service guarantees for Internet services has made the public Internet unsuitable for real-time medical applications, including telemedicine consults and real time medical education applications. (Health facilities are using the Internet for some of these applications, but the consistent complaints about lack of quality have severely limited the amount of use for these purposes.) The OHN makes it possible to obtain the economic advantages of Internet-like packet switched data transmission and the availability of connections to a very large number of sites, while retaining the quality of service that was previously available only on dedicated leased lines.

The basic OHN technical plan is simple: OHN arranges for its participants to contract with telecommunications vendors to provide a guaranteed amount of guaranteed quality data capacity, in increments of 10 or 100 megabits (Mb) per second, up to 1 gigabit (Gb) per second from each end user location to an Oregon data switching facility in Portland, the Northwest Access Exchange (NWAX), that permits connectivity with any other OHN end user site. NWAX also permits each end user site to connect with many other sites throughout Oregon that already exchange data traffic through NWAX. Thus, one connection from a rural clinic would be sufficient for it to reach any other medical facility in Oregon with high quality service. Even though different telecommunications vendors provide service to different facilities in different parts of the state, the guaranteed availability and quality of service on each link to the central switch will be sufficient to ensure that the end-to-end connection between any two end points will permit reliable real-time medical consultations and procedures.

The OHN Network Operations Center (NOC), operated under contract to OHN by EasyStreet Online Services of Beaverton, Oregon, is monitoring the network in real time to ensure that each telecommunications vendor meets the contractually committed quality of service guarantees on its portion of the network. OHN participants may contact the NOC staff to obtain assistance whenever they have technical network problems. The NOC staff will work with the telecom vendors involved to identify and isolate any problems and determine which telecom vendor is responsible. Without this NOC monitoring capability, individual sites with unsatisfactory service would not be able to prove to their telecom vendors that they were not getting the quality of service they contracted for.

OHN does not specify whether the data transport services are provided by MPLS, SONET, Ethernet or other means. The end user interfaces are specified as Internet Protocol (IP) over Ethernet, with contractually guaranteed Quality of Service (QoS) with respect to service availability (99.99%), transit delay, packet loss and jitter (variability in time of arrival of data packets). How the carriers transport the data packets and meet their QoS commitments is up to each carrier and may differ from carrier to carrier. Each participant site contracts for the amount of capacity required, in increments of 10 or 100 Mbs, with the amount of capacity contractually committed (not an unenforceable “up to” amount). In other words, each OHN participant contracts for the amount of data transport capacity required at each end user site in the form of a virtual leased line with guaranteed quality of service. All data transport services for OHN are leased from telecommunications vendors. OHN is not constructing any fiber links, buried or aerial.

See Attached Statement of Financial Position.

ii. Identify the respective amounts and remaining time for such assistance.

This question is addressed in the answer above.

d. Explain how the selected participant's minimum 15 percent contribution is helping to achieve both the selected participant's identified goals and objectives and the overarching goals of the Pilot Program.

We have performed multiple surveys to participants in the RHCPP process, and continue to further our efforts to insure use of the connection and network. OHN works actively with its participants to learn their organizational goals and needs – currently and in the future. Collectively, participants each have a different level of need, resources, staffing, and understanding of how OHN can help them serve the Triple Aim goals of CMS. However, all have proven to need education and support to truly translate the opportunity and capability OHN has in helping them do so.

Congruent to these outreach efforts, is OHN's active efforts to ensure that all participants are successful in moving some/all previous network traffic from their old connections on to the OHN network. OHN has also been acquiring, reporting and sharing information as to what telehealth programs OHN participants are providing and/or receiving. Based upon that data, OHN staff also work with each participant to make sure that the telehealth activity is also being deployed on OHN. What is significant to report on these efforts is the real need for projects and networks like OHN to help in the minute, interim steps that transition sites from go-live of their OHN network connection on to full use and adoption of the network.

For the remainder of the requested information please see Attachment B.

9. Identify any technical or non-technical requirements or procedures necessary for ineligible entities to connect to the participant's network.

OHN successfully engaged 4 ineligible entities to the network and currently have our first for-profit radiology clinic. All providers who are critical to the delivery of care should be on the OHN. However, we are targeting select provider types one at a time to address the current needs of participants to add the greatest value to the network, and to learn how to understand and enter new provider markets efficiently and successfully. Currently, we are specifically focused on efforts to bring on healthcare clinics, hospitals, radiology clinics/labs, physician practices and long-term care facilities which support the continuum of patient care. This is a difficult undertaking but one in which OHN is committed to. OHN's intent is to identify a streamlined and scalable outreach model for new provider industries like these, these early adopter providers would agree to commit to helping OHN develop a winning model, value proposition and annual OHN Participation Fee Structure.

8. Provide an update on the project management plan, detailing:

a. The project's current leadership and management structure and any changes to the management structure since the last data report;

OHN has added to staff a Director of Marketing and Communications to continue to improve and maximize our communication efforts across multiple members, organizations and mediums. One of the greatest “lessons learned” by OHN is that communication is essential to the success of the RHCPP today and overall integrated networks. There has been some changes in the board personnel which is noted above but no changes in the structure of the board.

b. In the first quarterly report, the selected applicant should provide a detailed project plan and schedule. The schedule must provide a list of key project deliverables or tasks, and their anticipated completion dates. Among the deliverables, participants must indicate the dates when each health care provider site is expected to be connected to the network and operational. Subsequent quarterly reports should identify which project deliverables, scheduled for the previous quarter, were met, and which were not met. In the event a project deliverable is not achieved, or the work and deliverables deviate from the work plan, the selected participant must provide an explanation.

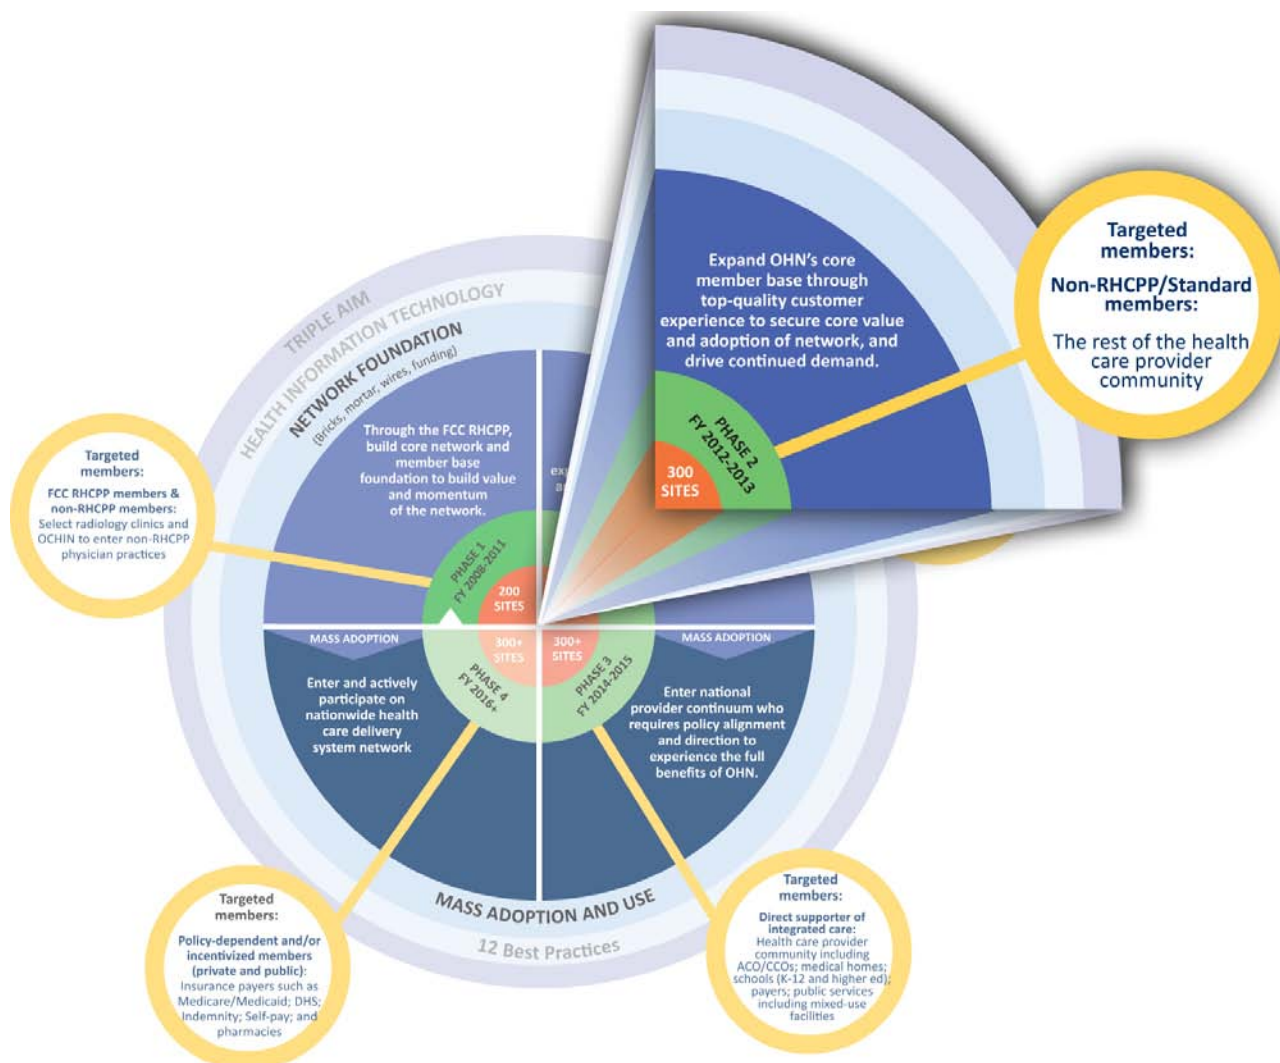

In follow up to last quarter’s report, the staff and board continue to focus and deliver upon multiple parallel track priorities:

1. FCC RHCPP> Deployment, Fund Raising & Compliance

- GOAL of 200 SITES: As OHN received an extension, as formally requested, to continue to obtain sites to spend down the remaining funds, through June 30, 2012, we have exceeded our original sustainability plan goal of 200 sites by an anticipated 43 funded locations. These sites are ones that best leverage and initiate strong “anchor tenant” communities” (hospitals, clinics, community colleges, radiology labs etc.) To date, including the 202 current funded sites, we have a total of 243 sites participating in the RHCPP process. The ability to now do so has a great amount to do with the FCC officially extending the 6/30/2011 deadline and our success in reducing attrition of those 243 sites. Of these:
 - Letter’s of Agreement: 336 (See Attachment C)
 - Funding Commitment Letters Issued: 202 Sites, 54 FCL’s
 - Actively being monitored by the OHN Network Operations Center: 91

See Attachment D

- FUNDRAISING: Based upon the participant sites in our pipeline, we have enough matching funds to cover the remaining sites interested in benefitting from the RHCPP opportunity. Meanwhile, OHN will continue to look for membership fees to support general operations. OHN has a goal to cover all core operational costs with annual participation fees and funding from new hosted services/applications to help successfully transition the organization from a RHCPP project deployment organization on to a more mature, sustainable business. This strategy and transition path is best described below:

- ADVOCACY & GROWTH: As supported in the above graphic, OHN is seeking continued support at the broadband policy and program funding level through the FCC that would continue to support consortium networks like OHN's post 2014. OHN is looking for this support to continue to fuel the existence and expansion of the network with a goal of a total of 500 total (subsidized and unsubsidized) sites post 2014. The detailed and formal requests made from OHN to the FCC have been documented in formal filings and include requests for Network Operations Center (NOC) support, no delineation between urban and rural locality, and subsidy support at 85% of NRC and MRC to name a few. These policy changes and clarifications would allow OHN to deliver sustained funding support while sites are satisfying CMS Electronic Medical Records deployment mandate, provide time for sites to maximize use of available telemedicine and telehealth applications, and continue the momentum that OHN and the state of Oregon currently has in building the first statewide health care network in the state.

- OPERATIONS > Organizational Development

- NETWORK OPERATIONS CENTER (NOC): The NOC was officially launched and actively monitoring OHN's first six (6) sites by the first week of November, 2009. Currently it is monitoring 91 sites. The NOC has been very successful in providing real-time monitoring and issue identification and resolution. As more sites get installed, the value of the NOC will increase.
- OPERATIONAL INFRASTRUCTURE OHN has invested in a MS CRM system to manage our significant client relationship content and workflows in order to reduce internal redundant work and to maximize our reporting capability. The addition of the CRM to our current MS Sharepoint system allows OHN to create indepth information on each site (customer), contacts, and sales/project opportunities. It also allows OHN to build onto our quality reporting capabilities to serve our customers and vested stakeholders including our legislative leadership. Data sets actively being tracked include: connectivity type, capacity, location and telehealth providers/recipients.
- COMMUNICATIONS, CUSTOMER SERVICE & USE OF THE NETWORK (vendors & participating sites): In addition to all the web-based process improvement tools outlined above, the staff have actively engaged in onsite outreach efforts to assist participants in successfully transitioning old network traffic on to their new OHN connection. Additionally, through OHN's new telehealth video conferencing solution, staff are working with existing and new participants in using video to support/enhance telehealth programs and/or operational efficiencies through the network and these new technologies. The goal and purpose in creating these surround efforts to reduce the attrition of sites from the program by better educating and engaging all leadership within each provider organization, to look at OHN as not just a commodity (internet) or hardware solution provider, but to use these capabilities to improve the quality of care. With a staff of 7.5, and 202 participating sites and 11 vendors, efficient and proactive customer service and education is critical to OHN's ability to create a positive experience and secure participation. To date, these outreach and training efforts have been extremely well received, and have resulted in increased bandwidth utilization and confirmed telehealth program use or interest.

Additionally, as new sites have their broadband installed and are connected to the OHN Network Operations Center (NOC), it is becoming increasingly apparent that sites (providers) need help learning what to do with the connection once it's lit-up. Therefore, we continue to work on, develop and distribute clarified documentation such as that within our new "welcome packet" which overviews and further educates the sites (providers) on both the value of the network (technology and people), and specifically, suggestions on how to work with the OHN NOC and the site's vendors to get hooked up to the NOC, then to move existing traffic over to the OHN as well as to move current/future applications over to OHN. A specific new effort has been designed to leverage the hospital system sites in reaching out to other OHN community hospital participants to run existing affiliate partner services that are broadband dependent over OHN. This is proving quite effective. Then, as more sites come on, we continue to learn the extent to which sites need hand-holding in truly using, leveraging and experiencing the value of the network. Customer service and consulting experience is therefore, becoming increasingly important for OHN and/or a strategic partner of OHN to supply providers. The development of materials like this will no doubt continue as we learn what those needs are, and how we can ensure the network is used to build the momentum of use and interest critical to the value and long-term viability of the network. However, additional networking, business and telemedicine expertise is truly needed for sites on an ongoing basis and OHN will have to learn how to fill that need in a way that is both valuable and sustainable to both the site and OHN.

- STRATEGY > Long-term value and sustainability

- i. Adoption & Value of the Network: Through OHN's new 12 Health IT Best Practices model and statewide on-site outreach, OHN staff continue to earn and cultivate the trust of our members and the statewide health/HIT community as we have come to better understand the needs of our members and what resources or information stand in the way of their full use, adoption and benefit of their connection. We have incorporated pre-turn-up testing protocols, to assist OHN participants who already have some form of telemedicine/telehealth or outreach program in place, to run “before and after” tests on their new connection. This is a critical first step in educating and assisting internal participant site staff and departments in experiencing what OHN can do for their day to day clinical and core operational environments. These sorts of tests are also critical for OHN to acquire and disseminate across the OHN community to build strong case studies for those who are struggling with full implementation and use of their new connection.

- ii. State’s Health Information Exchange (HIE) Solution: As mentioned in the previous quarter’s reports, while the RHCPP rolls out in Oregon through OHN, the State’s Health Information Technology Oversight Council (HITOC) has also been working hard to create and implement the State’s first Health Information Exchange (HIE) strategy and plan. This has involved and resulted in a massive outreach and stakeholder involvement effort on the part of HITOC; and one of which OHN has been and continues to be greatly involved in and supportive of. Within the plan, OHN is identified in multiple sections as the core broadband network identified to potentially support the State’s HIE solution. Additionally, as a result of OHN being connected to the State Data Center, OHN already has a technical solution path to support the HIE. As a newcomer organization to the scene, OHN has worked hard throughout our first 3 years of operations to be part of the State’s HIE solution and state-wide discussion, but our efforts and interest in building strong relationships, and educating the community at large, seem to have proven successful at this time. HITOC leadership has embraced OHN, and the critical role we can play as the required and chosen network foundation to support their final HIE solution. The announcement, development and surrounding activity of the State HIE solution has also proven most timely in terms of solidifying and/or expanding the value proposition for OHN’s outreach efforts to providers who remain “on the fence.” As the State’s identified HIE broadband infrastructure “highway,” which will support the exchange of electronic health care records and health information exchange across the state, it’s proving more important than ever for providers of all sizes to consider joining OHN to transfer/exchange those records on with other OHN participants/members.

9. Project Model Executive Summary

- After the conclusion of the Rural Health Care Pilot Program (RHCPP), OHN participants will continue to pay annual participation fees to support OHN operations, including common network elements not included in telecommunications vendor charges.
- OHN will continue to educate and include non-RHCPP healthcare providers onto the network, building our base and supporting integrated healthcare delivery models.
- OHN participants sign membership agreements that include a statement of their intention to continue to participate after the RHCPP is concluded.
- Post RHCPP, OHN participants will continue to be customers of telecommunications vendors for transport links from their sites to the OHN interconnection location. Urban participants will pay their full costs and eligible rural participants will pay the costs not subsidized by the Primary Universal Service Fund (USF) rural health care program, unless the FCC publishes the Broadband Plan with policy support of our consortium network design.

- OHN may centralized administrative support for eligible rural sites to participate in the Primary Rural Health Care Program, again depending on what policy changes are brought forth between now and 2014. New competitive procurements will determine whether more cost-effective solutions than those provided by renewal options are available.

Additionally, and the only one of its kind in the country, OHN has is very pleased to continue to build value and usage of the network through our new Telehealth Video Conferencing/ Bridging solution through OneVision and Oregon State University. Three (3) contracted OHN hospitals have implemented and are utilizing the OHN Telehealth Video Conferencing Solution on the OHN, and many more participants have expressed interest in using video to support the improved delivery/coordination of care. Therefore, with OHN's large participant base, continued high bandwidth utilization, telehealth/video conferencing use solutions in play, OHN has actively transitioned from RHCPP deployment on to being a network that has begun to demonstrate use of the network platform as a means to serve the Triple Aim: improve population health, improve patient outcomes/experience and reduce costs.

Please refer to Attachment B

11. Provide detail on how the supported network has complied with HHS health IT initiatives:

a. Explain how the supported network has used health IT systems and products that meet interoperability standards recognized by the HHS Secretary;

OHN's vision, network and business model has always been designed to connect with other regional public agency and private organization networks to fulfill the vision of developing not only a state wide, but nationwide integrated health care delivery system. OHN has been working with the California Telehealth Network for over two years to build with that same "end" in mind. While efforts and strategies exist to do so, obstacles still exist to make that investment and move a strong/sustainable one. Step one has been for both our network to successfully fulfill our RHCPP sustainability plan requirements and to make full and the best use of our awarded subsidy dollars. Additionally, until inter-state physician licensing, credentialing and privileging, as well as reimbursement policies are addressed, connect now would be premature.

Within and throughout Oregon, OHN has connected 14 very rural Department of Correction facilities and over 30 Oregon Youth Authority facilities to OHN through the RHCPP. Doing so required OHN having a connection to the State Data Center. Prior to OHN, the State Data Center had never connected to any other outside network like this, making it unprecedented. What this means is that through OHN and the State Data Center, true integrated health care delivery can occur across the public and private communities. This has proven incredibly timely due to Oregon having just recently launched its version of the CMS Accountable Care Organization (ACO) model, called the Oregon Coordinated Care Organization Models (CCO's) which are being designed and deployed the summer of 2012. OHN's network is the best and only means to connect multiple public/private providers together to improve the coordination of care.

b. Explain how the supported network has used health IT products certified by the Certification Commission for Healthcare Information Technology;

With over 240 provider sites actively connected and/or engaged with OHN, and through OHN's outreach and best practice sharing efforts, OHN has cultivated a growing and greater understanding about the intended uses of the network both in the short, mid and long-term. There are a number of participants that have a very sophisticated understanding and strategy as to what health IT applications and new clinical/telehealth servicelines they envision utilizing as a result of the OHN. Others, however, are still very unclear, and OHN is working to assist these participants by identifying telehealth resources and information that allows them to develop sound strategies and plans to fully use the network. An example of a health IT product that can be used on the OHN are:

- Telemedicine & HIT Applications
 - Video conference technology for training or consultations. Most common uses are:
 - Continuing medical education (CME)
 - Diagnosis (tele-radiology; mental health, routine clinical consultations)
 - Emergency consultation & triage
 - Follow-up

- Administrative

The use of video conferencing allows for operational efficiency, improved file transfer times, the ability to bring in services from other partners that were previously unavailable due to bandwidth constraints, faster and more reliable connectivity to data center/server locations for improved processing times, and increased and/or improved upon state-wide referral patterns amongst healthcare providers.

c. Explain how the supported network has supported the Nationwide Health Information Network (NHIN) architecture by coordinating activities with organizations performing NHIN trial implementations;

In these critical first three and a half years of getting participants through the RHCPP process and on the network, no direct/active effort has yet been made to address the NHIN architecture. Having said that, preliminary research and discussions have taken place both internally within OHN, and with the State as the State clarifies and implements it's HIE solution which currently leverages the NHIN architecture.

d. Explain how the supported network has used resources available at HHS's Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) National Resource Center for Health Information Technology

OHN has been working with the Governor of Oregon's Health Information Technology Oversight Council (HITOC) since its inception, working to best leverage OHN's statewide health care network infrastructure into the state's health information exchange (HIE) solution and overarching HIT plan. Additionally, OHN has been working with Oregon's only Regional Extension Center, O-HITEC, to support their efforts to encourage the expansion, deployment and meaningful use of electronic health records across the state. Both the State and OCHIN/O-HITEC also have seats on the OHN Board.

1. Explain how the selected participant has educated themselves concerning the Pandemic and All Hazards Preparedness Act and coordinated with the HHS Assistant Secretary for Public Response as a resource for telehealth inventory and for the implementation of other preparedness and response initiatives.

OHN has been actively working with the State of Oregon, Healthcare Security - Preparedness & Response Program leadership, to educate them on how OHN and its new Telehealth Video Conferencing solution can and should be utilized to better support the communication and statewide coordination in the event of an emergency. Currently, the State has been unsuccessful in identifying a video conferencing solution that could support public/private video conferencing. OHN's solution does. In addition to and related to these discussions, OHN is working with the Oregon Department of Administration through the Oregon Broadband Advisory council, to assist the currently silo'd state agencies in understanding the network topology across the state, and these agency's future needs and demands, to create a better roadmap as to how communication and program integration/coordination can occur with a more seamless statewide network infrastructure.

f. Explain how the supported network has used resources available through HHS's Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Public Health Information Network (PHIN) to facilitate interoperability with public health and emergency organizations.

In addition to OHN's work on Emergency & Disaster Response, OHN has informed the Oregon Department of Administrative Services (DAS) on OHN's MS Sharepoint Portal system that could actively push/pull public safety alerts/information across our network to the State. These discussions are preliminary, but are actively underway.

12. Explain how the selected participants coordinated in the use of their health care networks with the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and, in particular, with its Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in instances of national, regional, or local public health emergencies (e.g., pandemics, bioterrorism). In such instances, where feasible, explain how selected participants provided access to their supported networks to HHS, including CDC, and other public health officials.

There are three areas that OHN has focused upon to meet these core goals of the RHCPP:

1. Governance and membership composition restructure that has included the addition of a Department of Health Services (newly named Oregon Health Authority) board seat. This will be critical in better communicating and aligning OHN's goals and objectives to that of the State's.
2. Continued development of our MS Sharepoint portal system for board, committee, staff, site and vendors – OHN has a technological communication framework that could easily be used with HHS and CDC etc. to post and distribute national alerts through the OHN community state-wide ability through our newly developed OHN Portal to quickly contact all participating sites in case of a national, regional, or local public health emergency.
3. Working with state and local governments to be part of the conversation of an integrated system. OHN is actively engaged in this effort and is looking forward to be part of these conversations and strategy setting. MGiven the very serious situation Oregon faces with a $3.8b deficit, all state agencies are being tasked to do more with less and very interested with solutions. We believe that with OHN we can do that and more – we can do even better than before.

Thank you.
